Hello,

We will have a diver and our consultant on our lake on Friday, July 2nd to manually remove Eurasian water milfoil that we found in our lake east of the channel. The diver is Matt Berg's son, Noah, who will be down under removing EWM. We need a couple of volunteers in kayaks to scoop up any floating fragments that may get away during the removal process. I have pool nets that can be used to grab errant fragments floating on the surface. I will pick up Noah at the boat landing with my pontoon and we will be at the marked EWM site on the east side of the channel around 10:15 or 10:30. This process could take 5-6 hours. Please let me know if you have time to help us.
